- | | |
|--|---|
| Paul Archambault | What? Another Journal?
Page 5. |
| William Wasserstrom | Yes, Another Journal
The chairman of the Board of Editors tells how the Scholar was born. Page 7. |
| Peter G. Bergmann | The Quest for Unity: General Relativity and Unitary Field Theories
Einstein searched for unifying principles, from special and general theories of relativity to a unitary field theory, still incomplete. Several alternative approaches to a unitary theory suggest the difficulty of this problem. Page 9. |
| Samuel K. Eddy | Climate in Greco-Roman History
Examination of the rings of giant California sequoias, along with other contemporaneous physical evidence, provides an understanding of certain climatic changes in the classical world and suggests some surprising determinants of Greco-Roman social and political history. Page 19. |
| Frederick Marvin | In the Footsteps of Jan Ladislav Dussek: An Interview by Paul Archambault
Personal and professional reminiscences in the search for source material on Dussek. Page 31. |
| Jerome Witkin | A Painting in Progress
A series of original sketches accompanied by comments from the artist. Page 43. |
| Daniel Patrick Moynihan | Technology and Human Freedom
Technology has extended the possibilities of choice and thus enhanced human freedom. A weakening technology in America now threatens the condition of freedom and social progress. Page 59. |
| Symposium:
Jonathan F. Bennett
Donald T. Campbell
Ben R. Ware | The Arts and Sciences Face the Eighties: Beyond the Boundaries of Our Disciplines
Three Syracuse University faculty members discuss the academic mission on the occasion of the installation of Gershon Vincow as dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. Page 65. |
