Syracuse University

SURFACE

School of Architecture - Theses

Spring 2009

Architecture Thesis, 2009-Paul Miller: The Lobby volume 2

Paul Miller

Follow this and additional works at: https://surface.syr.edu/arc_etd

Part of the Architecture Commons

Recommended Citation

Miller, Paul, "Architecture Thesis, 2009-Paul Miller: The Lobby volume 2" (2009). School of Architecture -Theses. 4.

https://surface.syr.edu/arc_etd/4

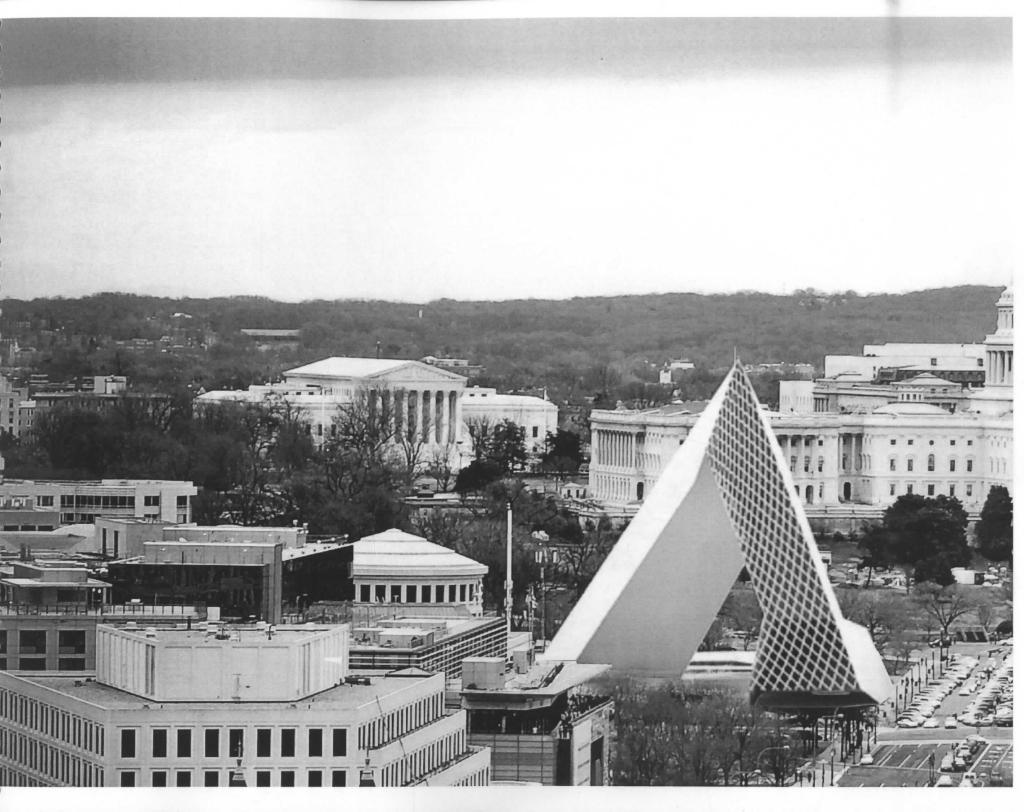

This Thesis is brought to you for free and open access by SURFACE. It has been accepted for inclusion in School of Architecture - Theses by an authorized administrator of SURFACE. For more information, please contact surface@syr.edu.

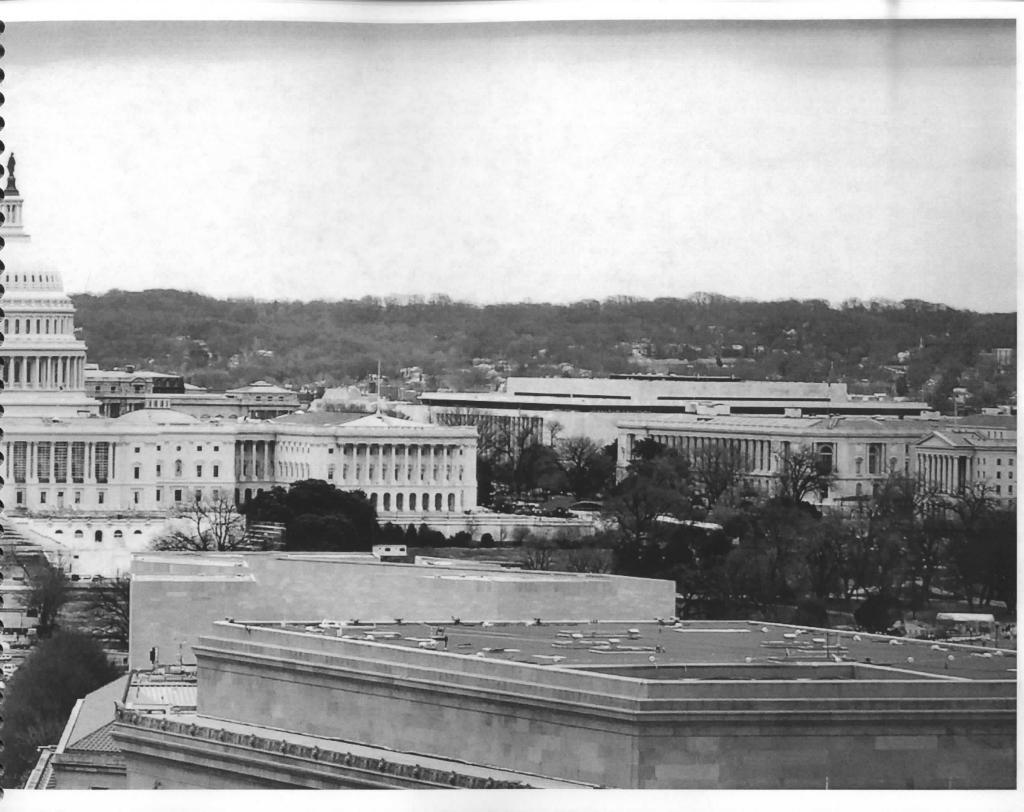

The lobby.

The lobby, volume 2.

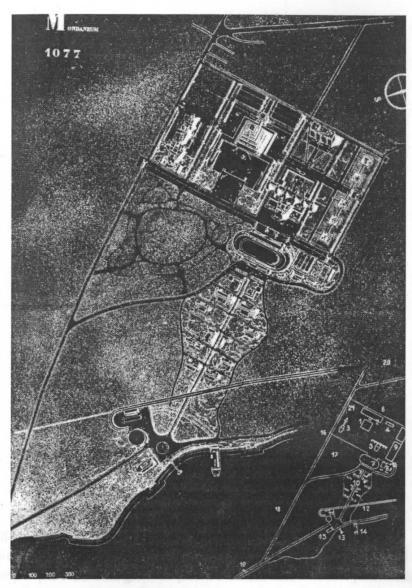

Paul Miller with advisors Jonathan Lott and Mark Robbins May 2009

Thesis submitted toward completion of a Bachelor of Architecture degree.

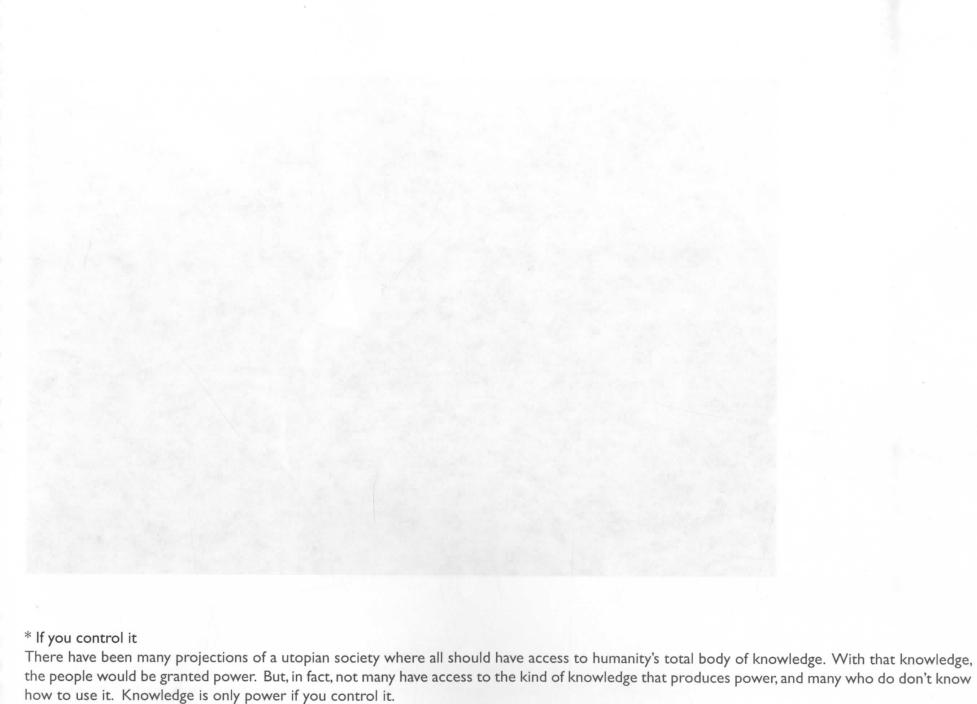

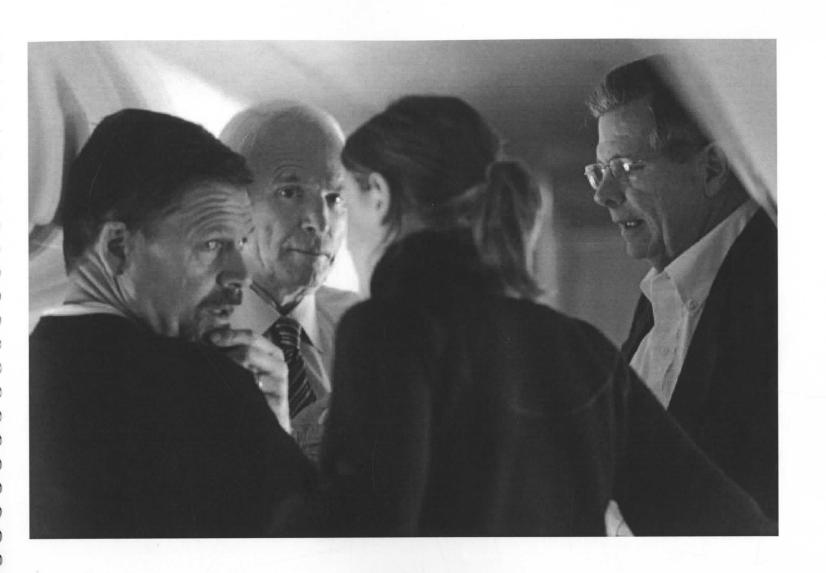

Knowledge is power *

Le Corbusier's plan for the Mundaneum

Early doctors, trisis managers, campaign handlers, image in honcors to Washington O.C. a privileged group of policial consultance, the lobbylets, have slowly and steadily gained a tremendous amount of power discussion toutrol of information needed by private ordinary constants, and elected officials. Always the middleman, the lobbylet constantly mediates any shart wants something and the other than sen give it to them.

Spin doctors, crisis managers, campaign handlers, image enhancers

In Washington DC, a privileged group of political consultants, the lobbyists, have slowly and steadily gained a tremendous amount of power through their control of information needed by private citizens, corporations, and elected officials. Always the middleman, the lobbyist constantly mediates the party that wants something and the other that can give it to them.

$

Plugged-in; the Lobby at night

From K Street to Constitution

Currently housed in generic office space near K Street, there is no architectural presence of lobbyists where they do most of their business. More than two miles from the Capitol building, they make their home far from where power is represented in Washington. The lobby proposes to physically plug these middlemen into the system they already have much control over, simultaneously giving them presence, acknowledging their access, and revealing their control.

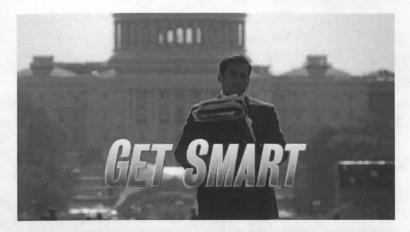

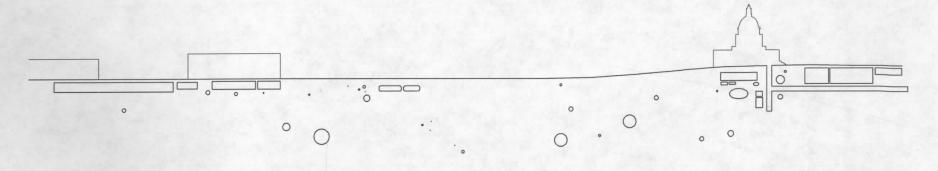

what we know

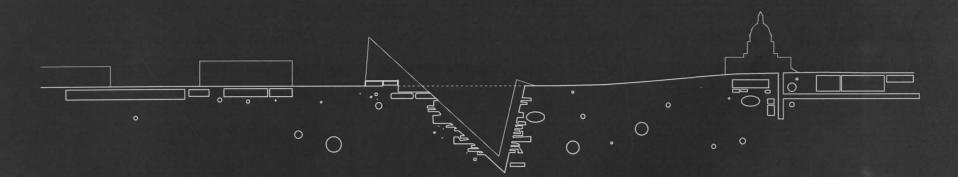

what we imagine

the lobby

