Bridgette Werner nació en Winnipeg, Manitoba, y se crió en Marcellus, New York. Ha estudiado español desde que tenía 14 años, pero nunca conectó tanto con la idioma hasta que vivía en Bolivia— y le bromearon sin misericordia por su terrible acento gringo. Desde que arregló su pronunciación, Bridgette ha continuado el estudio del español, latinoamérica, y fotoperiodismo en Syracuse University. Después de graduarse en mayo de 2011, espera continuar su trabajo sobre latinoamérica, y algún día vivir otra vez en el extranjero, con la meta de promover la paz, justicia, igualdad y dignidad de la gente. En su tiempo libre, le gusta comer la comida mexicana, pretender ser buena fotógrafa y estar con sus amigos y familia.

about the author/photographer

Bridgette Werner was born in Winnipeg, Manitoba, and grew up in Marcellus, New York. She has studied Spanish since age 14, but never connected so well to the language until she lived in Bolivia—and was mercilessly teased for her horrendous gringo accent. Since getting her pronunciation in shape, Bridgette has continued to study Spanish, Latin America, and photojournalism at Syracuse University. After graduating in May 2011, she hopes to continue her work on Latin America, and eventually live abroad again, with the aim of promoting peace, justice and the equality and dignity of all people. In her downtime, Bridgette enjoys eating Mexican food, pretending to be good at photography and spending time with friends and family.
