PETER E. HERZOG

FESTSCHRIFT HONORING PETER E. HERZOG CRANDALL MELVIN PROFESSOR OF LAW

DEDICATION

The Syracuse Journal of International Law and Commerce is greatly honored to dedicate our twenty-fifth issue to Professor Peter E. Herzog. It is with profound admiration and respect that we honor our most senior faculty member here at the College of Law. We can think of no greater way to celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of our Journal.

Professor Herzog was born in Vienna, Austria, the son of Paul Herzog, a Vienna attorney. In 1949, Professor Herzog attended his father's alma mater, the University of Vienna, for a one year study of law. He then came to the United States to complete his undergraduate education at Hobart College, graduating cum laude in 1952. That same year, Professor Herzog began his formal legal education at Syracuse University College of Law. Three years later, he graduated summa cum laude with an LL.B.(J.D.) After a stellar career as a law student at Syracuse, Professor Herzog attended Columbia University where, in 1956, he received his masters of law, specializing in Conflicts of Law and Comparative Law.

In 1957, after gaining admission to the Bar of the State of New York, Professor Herzog began his legal career as a Deputy Assistant Attorney General. One year later he became an Assistant Attorney General for the New York State Department of Law. His work primarily involved claims by and against the State and reviews of administrative actions. He argued a number of appeals in the Appellate Division, and one before the Court of Appeals.

In 1958, Professor Herzog began his long and distinguished career as a scholar and academic when he accepted a position as an Assistant Professor at Syracuse University College of Law. Although specializing in International Law, Professor Herzog has taught a variety of classes while at Syracuse. These courses include Conflicts of Law, Comparative Law, Law of the European Communities and Torts.

Over his career, Professor Herzog has taught at a number of institutions. He was a Visiting Professor at University Paris I (Panthéon-Sorbonne)(1976-1977); Visiting Adjunct Professor at Cornell University Law School (Spring 1976); Visiting Professor at the University of Burgundy in Dijon, France (Spring 1977); Visiting Professor at the University of Fribourg in Switzerland (Fall 1987); and Lecturer at the College of Europe in Bruges, Belgium (Spring 1989).

In addition to academic positions, Professor Herzog has held other professional positions including Staff Member to the New York State

Joint Legislative Committee on Metropolitan Area Studies (1958-1959); Staff Member at the Columbia University Project on International Procedure (1960-1963); and Associate Director of the Columbia University Project on European Legal Institutions (1968-1972).

Professor Herzog is a member of several professional and learned societies, including the American Society of International Law; the American Journal of Comparative Law, where he served on its Board of Editors; the International Law Association; International Academy of Comparative Law, where he has served as a National Reporter since the IX Congress; German-American Lawyers Association; Wissenschaftliche Gesellschaft für Verfahrensrecht; the Soci t  de Legislation Compar e; Revue Critique de Droit International Priv , where he served as an American Correspondent. Additionally, he has served as the 1982 Chair of the AALS Section on Conflicts of Law, and the 1983 Chair of the AALS Section on Comparative Law.

Professor Herzog is also an accomplished writer having authored a number of articles and several books in the English, French and German languages. These writings cover diverse areas of the law including: Conflicts of Law, Constitutional Law, Law of the European Community, French Civil Procedure and Tort Law. Additionally, he has lectured on a variety of legal topics around the world, including lectures in France, Germany, Greece, Netherlands and Sicily.

Throughout his life he has been the recipient of many awards, scholarships, fellowships and research grants. In recognition of his scholarship and devotion to the College of Law, Professor Herzog was presented with the Chancellor's Citation for Academic Excellence in 1983. Additionally, he was honored as a Crandall Melvin Professor at the College of Law in 1983.

Professor Herzog officially retired in January of 1995, and now spends his spring semesters in Paris. He continues to teach Comparative Law and the Law of the European Union at the College of Law each Fall. Honoring Professor Herzog would be incomplete without mentioning his family. His wife Bridgitte, avocat   la Cour d'Appel de Paris, is also a graduate of the Syracuse College of Law. They also have two children, Paul, a graduate of Tulane Law School, and Elizabeth-Ann, currently a student at Syracuse University.

Professor Herzog's love of teaching and the law inspired his colleagues and many generations of law students. The College, the Journal, and his friends are honored to be able to pay tribute to Professor Herzog and dedicate this Festschrift to him.
