Facing page: About 3,100 new students arrived on campus and hundreds of volunteers helped them move into their residences as Syracuse Welcome 2007: A Slice of SU Life got under way. During the weekend, students were treated to a wide variety of events, including the Chancellor's Convocation for New Students, Lunch on the Turf at the Carrier Dome and "Feel the Pulse of Syracuse," a party in downtown Syracuse.

Below: Syracuse University, the new home campus for Imagining America (IA), hosted the organization's seventh national conference. IA is a national consortium of some 80 colleges and universities whose mission is to strengthen the public role and democratic purposes of the humanities, arts and design. More than 200 IA members and representatives focused their attention on the theme "Citizenship for a Just World: Activating Knowledge, Cultivating Engagement" and heard from IA's new director, Jan Cohen-Cruz.
